JOB DRIVE FOR 800 IN COUNTY TO BE ORGANIZED

Adams county's job mobilization committee will be completely organized within a week and a vigorous campaign will be carried on to absorb into private industry the approximately 800 countians who are now unemployed. The county campaign is part of the state-wide program started by Pennsylvania businessmen to endeavor to reduce unemployment in Pennsylvania in a sufficient degree, by January 30, 1940, to make unnecessary a special session of the legislature to raise additional funds for relief purposes through new taxation.

The first steps in the county campaign were taken at a meeting held on Thursday, at the Hotel Gettysburg, in which Henry M. Scharf and Edmund W. Thomas, chairman and vice chairman, respectively, of the county job-mobilization committee, Truman B. Thompson, Gettysburg manager of the Pennsylvania State Employment service, and Col. J. L. Barton, executive director of the Adams County board of Public Assistance, participated.

Purpose of Committee

Following the meeting this statement was released:

"The Adams county job-mobilization committee is not an employment agency. The committee's sole purpose and duty is to encourage employers to give jobs and thereby reduce unemployment. The staggering cost of unemployment necessary falls on private business and industry in the form of taxes. If unemployment can be reduced it is possible to avert a special session of the legislature and the enactment of new taxes to maintain the $9,000,000 or $10,000,000 per month direct relief load that Pennsylvania business is now required to carry.

"The committee has the complete co-operation of the state employment service and Public Assistance department. Hence, the committee emphasizes that employers have complete freedom in selection of employees. That the state employment service is the best source to secure employees is evident because of the complete knowledge this office has of the availability of all classes of labor, and their adaptability to specific requirements of training and skill.

Survey Being Made

"A county-wide committee of employers will be formed next week. A survey is being made of the areas in the county where unemployment exists. The committee's function will be to try to stimulate jobs so as to absorb the unemployment that exists. The best information available indicates that there are 15,000 people employed in Adams county and that only 800 are unemployed. That makes the ratio about one to 17 so we want to find one more job for every 17 that now exists.

"While the purpose is to reduce the relief load, it is recognized that certain forms of relief such as old-age assistance, blind pensions, aid to dependent children and assistance to people who, because of age or physical deficiencies, are unemployable, must be continued and are beyond the scope of the job-mobilization organization. Nevertheless, the committee takes recognition of the existence of an unemployed group that has not accepted public assistance or relief. The committee, absolutely, is as much interested in placing this group in private employment as any other. Every new job, whether given to a person receiving relief or not, lessens the relief load directly or indirectly.

"This movement over the state was sponsored by Pennsylvania businessmen. In Adams county it is the campaign of county business men and employers. It is a matter of jobs or more relief. It is a choice between payrolls with their productive value or taxes to finance relief. The time has arrived to check the rising relief load for all time and on that basis the committee urges the co-operation of all employers, large and small."

Program Begins

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—The executive director of the administration's "give-a-job" campaign reported today that "county and local committees have swung into action without any delay" in the drive to reduce Pennsylvania's unemployment.

"The people of Pennsylvania realize that we can not cut taxes until we cut relief," said William A. Hemphill, of Philadelphia. "As a consequence, they are in sympathy with this program which, if successful, will go far to bring back prosperity to every part of Pennsylvania."

FOREST FIRE AT MT. ALTO BURNS OVER 100 ACRES

A forest fire, believed to have been the work of an incendiary, burned over approximately 100 acres of woodland just east of the Mt. Alto sanitarium Thursday afternoon being brought under control about 5:30 o'clock. The fire was discovered about 2:30 o'clock.

According to Tom Norris, district forester located at Caledonia, tree leaves on the ground prevented more serious damage as flames were confined mostly to the tops of the trees. The fire fanned by a high wind, covered a strip of land about one mile long and 300 yards wide.

C.C.C. enrollees from Pine Grove and Camp 70, near Waynesboro, and students at the Mt. Alto forestry school assisted state foresters in bringing the fire under control.

He was the first conductor of the Berlin State Opera House, directing an orchestra of 127 pieces and a chorus of 120 voices. He was immensely successful. He had conducted at performances attended by Hitler, Goering, et al. He was offered a renewal of his contract, and an increase in his monthly salary equivalent, in German Marks, to $850 in American money.

Then came the Gestapo. Hitler's vaunted but hated secret police.

"They learned that he, a Catholic and an Austrian, was in love with the daughter of a wealthy Jew and that he planned to marry her. They had been sweethearts for eight years.

The Gestapo's ultimatum, relayed to him through the managing director of the Berlin Opera House:

A new conducting contract BUT he must sign papers declaring that he will forever give up the girl he loved and planned to marry OR banishment.

Well, it was a difficult problem. He had reached the heights of musical favor and achievement in Berlin. He wanted to continue his career in music. The salary was most attractive and the new contract meant fame and fortune.

'Charging' Bunny Killed With Butt Of Gun; Shots Fail

WHEN a hunter goes after rabbits, it's just an everyday occurrence, but when a rabbit gets after a hunter—a hunter who is armed and blazing away at the bunny—it comes under the head of the unusual in hunting experiences.

The other day Private William I. Banzhaf, of the Gettysburg detachment of the state motor police, went hunting and ran across a cotton-tail that introduced some entirely new tactics in the war of hunter vs. rabbit—and almost won the engagement.

Banzhaf was startled as he stalked through a field south of here and not far from the Emmitsburg road to see a rabbit charging straight for him. The policeman raised his shotgun and blazed away with one barrel. He overshot his mark and the bunny came on. The hunter fired a second time, but with no more success.

By that time the rabbit was almost upon the officer who quickly shifted his grip on the weapon and with a deft swing killed the bunny by a blow from the butt of his gun.

Corporal J. G. Warren, who was Banzhaf's hunting companion that day, vouches for the story.

group, the audience was very responsive, but still a bit uncertain of their liberties of applause. Consequently, Miss Bampton gave no encore.

In her second group, Miss Bampton sang with great feeling the two lovely German songs, "Gretchen am Spinnrad" of Schubert, and "Verborghheit" of Wolf. Her third number "Standchen," by Strauss, was given with ease and vivacity. The aria, "Dich, teure Halle," from "Tannhauser" by Wagner, gave a serious climax to Miss Bampton's German group. The audience by this time grew more enthusiastic and applauded vociferously to which Miss Bampton responded with two numbers "Lover's Lament," an old English song arranged by Russell Rand, followed by the aria from "Die Walkure," by Wagner, "Die Bist der Lenz."

Talented Pianist

Karl Kriz, Miss Bampton's accompanist, is a pianist of great renown in both Austria and Germany, having directed orchestras in both countries. He was most dependable and sympathetic throughout the entire program. His piano numbers "Impromptu, No. 4" by Schubert, and "Tarentella," by Nicode, did play his light touch and the ease with which he performed. His audience was most enthusiastic and in response to its applause he played "Waltz in E Minor," by Chopin. In spite of the spontaneous applause, Mr. Kriz gave all honors to the star of the evening and merely took several bows.

The last number of the first group "O Patria Mia," from "Aida" by Verdi, was given with great feeling, after which Miss Bampton responded with an aria "Cavalleria Rusticana" by Mascagni. The numbers displayed Miss Bampton's dramatic (Continued on Page Two)

'Charging' Bunny Killed With Butt Of Gun; Shots Fail

WHEN a hunter goes after rabbits, it's just an everyday occurrence, but when a rabbit gets after a hunter—a hunter who is armed and blazing away at the bunny—it comes under the head of the unusual in hunting experiences.

The other day Private William I. Banzhaf, of the Gettysburg detail of the state motor police, went hunting and ran across a cotton-tail that introduced some entirely new tactics in the war of hunter vs. rabbit—and almost won the engagement.

Banzhaf was startled as he stalked through a field south of here and not far from the Emmittsburg road to see a rabbit charging straight for him. The policeman raised his shotgun and blazed away with one barrel. He overshot his mark and the bunny came on. The hunter fired a second time, but with no more success.

By that time the rabbit was almost upon the officer who quickly shifted his grip on the weapon and with a deft swing killed the bunny by a blow from the butt of his gun.

Corporal J. G. Warren, who was Banzhaf's hunting companion that day, vouches for the story.

Three other defendants were indicted.

Gilbert Gracey, Thomasville, York county, was not indicted when it could not be shown where chickens he abandoned at Littlestown several weeks ago when accosted by Officer H. S. Roberts had been stolen. A man who fled with Gracey never was apprehended.

The grand jury also failed to indict William Yealy, McSherrystown, on a charge of furnishing beer to minors. The information was filed by Thomas L. Casey, of the state liquor control board. The case had been continued from the August session of court.

ability. In response to applause, Miss Bampton sang "The Rosary," by Nevin, a glorious conclusion to the first part of the program and most appealing to her audience.

The second half of the program was varied and beautifully rendered. Miss Bampton's first number was the modern "Chere Nuit" of Bachellet, followed by Debussy's "Fan-tasies," in which one could hear the light melodious strains of the nightingale. Miss Bampton gave credit to her accompanist for his support and interpretation.

Readers Favorite Number
"None But The Lonely Heart," by Tschalkowsky, was sung with great tenderness. It was beautifully legato.

The last number of this group, an aria "Viss d'Arte," from "Tosca" by Puccini, is always a favorite and was done with perfect finesse.

Miss Bampton responded with an encore from "Carmen" by Bizet, "Seguidilla." That was followed by "Oh, No, John!" an old folk song, which again displayed Miss Bampton's lovely personality.

The last group was headed by "Music I Heard With You," by Richard Hageman, which Miss Bampton sang in her clear, melodious voice. "A Piper," Michael Head, showed to perfection Miss Bampton's diction, which is a great asset in her singing. The piano in this number was the solo with the voice as the accompaniment. Miss Bampton again gave honors to Mr. Kriz after this rendition.

A song appropriate to the season was Giannini's "Tell Me, O Blue, Blue Sky." The finale of the program, "Rejoice Greatly," from "The Messiah," by Handel, added a celestial touch to a most varied program. The audience did not stir at the completion of the program, eagerly wishing for more.

Request Number
Miss Bampton most graciously presented "Un Bel Di," from "Madame Butterfly," by Puccini, as an encore to her concluding numbers. Again the audience waited. Miss Bampton responded with a request number "American Lullaby," by Richard Hageman, which Miss Bampton sang in her clear, melodious voice. "A Piper," Michael Head, showed to perfection Miss Bampton's diction, which is a great asset in her singing. The piano in this number was the solo with the voice as the accompaniment. Miss Bampton again gave honors to Mr. Kriz after this rendition.

Here and There News and Comment Gathered at Random

the girl he loved. What did he do?

He chose banishment and happiness with his boyhood sweetheart.

That, briefly, is the fateful decision of Karl Kriz, accompanist for Rose Bampton, Metropolitan Opera Company's leading soprano, who appeared in a recital here last night.

Karl Kriz is a little, round man, fair and full face with medium brown, pompadour hair. He is quiet, modest and unassuming. A very pleasant young man of 33 years who has found new happiness in his newly adopted land—the United States.

"Any American who does not like this country should go to Germany, spend two or three weeks or months, then return here and kiss the very ground he walks upon. So thankful should he be that he is a citizen of this great country."

That's the way Karl Kriz best describes his happiness, peace of mind and contentment in his new home. He lives in New York city.

Yes, Karl Kriz married the girl of his boyhood affection. They have a five-month-old daughter, Susan, and these three, the one-time Catholic choir boy of Vienna, the daughter of a one-time wealthy Jew and their little baby daughter have found their own happiness in a land where men and women ARE men and women and not pawn-checks in the smeared hands of a minority of fanatics.

Karl Kriz was born to be a musician. It was his first love and his flare for singing soon attracted him to a wealthy Viennese whose hobby was financing choirs in what was once the gay and festive Vienna.

Karl, when a mere boy, sang soprano in a Catholic choir. He then spent ten years at the Academy of Music in Staats, studying piano, voice, violin, organ, conducting, theory and composition.

At the age of 20 he had achieved such heights in the music world that he was chosen to conduct the 96-piece orchestra at the Nuremberg Opera House. For two years he was the first conductor of the Philharmonic city opera at Nuremberg-Furth. He was climbing the difficult stairs that leads to world fame in the field of music and he was happy. Even then he had dreams of happiness with the girl of his first sincere love.

Berlin beckoned. What a glorious opportunity. Karl Kriz heard the call that usually comes to every one and was soon conducting the Berlin State Opera House orchestra and chorus.

Hitler's Nazism had gained control of the Third German Reich. The high command of the swastika forces were regular patrons of the opera and they enjoyed the conducting of Karl Kriz.

Karl had reached the pinnacle in Germany's Berlin. Now he could marry Fridl Goldsmith, a pretty, 23-year-old Jewess. Her father owned a huge metal works. He was immensely wealthy. He did not like the treatment accorded the Jews by Hitler and his Nazis but he always felt and believed that he would eventually turn out all right and that he could regain his rapidly waning prestige and prominence.

Then came the Gestapo's ultimatum.

Karl Kriz came to America. Where else could he turn to continue in greater safety, than the U. S. A.?

While in Berlin he was under what they call the Prussian law. He was an Austrian and so long as he was associated with the Berlin Opera House he was safe. Goering passes on all opera house contracts. Goering determines and decides who is a Jew and who is not. You may be a Jew and still be in the good graces of Goering, but not for long.

Karl came to this country on his visit with Fridl Goldsmith, who has relatives in New York city. Karl returned but Fridl dared not. She remained here. Karl refused to sign the Gestapo papers and he managed to secure a visa to leave Germany to rejoin and marry Fridl. He had met her while she was a member of the Corps de ballet in Nuremberg.

Fridl's father lost everything. The Gestapo took his factory. They took his money. They took over his villa and smashed everything they could lay their hands on. They even cut the tires off his cars and then slammed him in the dreaded concentration camp at Dachau.

From early morn until noon Fridl's father was made to stand perfectly still, at attention, not permitted to move so much as a muscle. They beat him. He had a nervous breakdown and they released him. He managed to find his way out of Germany, after he had signed papers turning all his possessions over to the nazis, accompanied by his worried wife and son. Today they are in London, awaiting an opportunity to come to this country. Karl plans to send the money to make the trip.

Incidentally, Fridl's father fought with the German army during the first World war. After that he resumed his peace-time pursuits and all the things that he worked for and achieved, he lost, overnight, to the Hitler clique. Before he could leave Germany he was forced to sign papers attesting to the "fine" treatment accorded him in the concentration camp.

Karl Kriz admits that he made a serious mistake last year. He decided to return to Vienna to visit his father and mother. He entered Germany without difficulty, visited his parents and then went to Berlin to visit friends.

One day he made an appointment to meet a friend at one of Berlin's popular restaurants. Karl was fifteen minutes late. Those fifteen minutes saved him. During that brief interlude the Gestapo, tracking and hunting down all Austrians, who had fled Vienna in an attempt to gain refuge in the larger cities of the Reich, had "cleaned out" the restaurant of all Austrians. Today those Austrian patrons of that restaurant, including Karl's friend, are in a German concentration camp.

Karl Kriz wasted no time leaving Berlin. He took the first train out and managed to reach the border of Switzerland. At Basle he was taken from the train by German agents and confined to the border police station. The Swiss officials ruled that that portion of the station house where Karl was confined was in Switzerland and Karl was given his freedom—for fourteen days. Those fourteen days were all that Karl wanted. His boat for America left before the expiration of that period and Karl again reached this land of the free.

Karl's brother is a captain in the German army but he hasn't heard from him, or his parents and grandmother, in months. He likes to send them food because they are given a bare sufficiency to exist. But Karl doesn't know whether they ever receive it.

Karl and his wife have their first papers to become American citizens and they propose to be American citizens the rest of their lives.

Workers Disband Carlisle Union

Workers of the Carlisle Shoe company, Carlisle, at a meeting Wednesday night, voted to disband their union which last spring won recognition as employees' bargaining agency following a long fight between the C.I.O. and A.F.L.

Meeting in the Cumberland county court house, the workers instructed officers to give the prescribed ninety-day notice to company officials and national union headquarters that they do not wish to renew the sole bargaining agency agreement on expiration next March. Members declared the vote was "overwhelming."

"The union hasn't benefited us one bit," one worker stated. "We have paid in thirty-five cents each week in dues and have received nothing for it. Together our dues have amounted to $4,000 and most of this has gone out of town."

The workers complained that the union organizers' promises of increased wages never materialized. The union was Local 580, of the Boot and Shoe Workers of America, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. For weeks last spring agents of both the C.I.O. and A.F.L. were busy recruiting members in a busy drive to secure sole bargaining rights. The issue was decided March 17 at a special election supervised by N.L.R.B. officials.

At the meeting on Wednesday night Michael Tosoro, A.F.L. organizer, told the workers that it was their union which kept the company from moving from Carlisle to Annyville last summer.

Charles H. Nickel, paid agent for the local which maintains an office in Carlisle, and who was chosen from the ranks of the workers when the organization was formed, said the action taken Wednesday night was not according to the prescribed method for ending a recognition agreement.

KEEPS PROMISE

Denver, Dec. 17 (AP)—Several men attending the National Reclamation association convention were chatting. Said one "Tom McClure, meet Dan Hughes." McClure, state engineer for New Mexico, silently sized up Hughes, Montrose, Colorado, attorney and stockman. Then he handed Hughes a small object: "Here it is. You said 'keep this for me until I see you again.'" The object was Hughes' World war identification tag. The men last had met in Nice, France, December 1, 1918.

Bullet Win Over Bears Means Conference Title

A school holiday awaits Ursinus college students in the event their football team is successful in upsetting the Gettysburg Bulldogs here Saturday afternoon in an Eastern Pennsylvania conference game. The kickoff is listed for 2 o'clock.

Each season Ursinus furnishes Gettysburg the stiffest kind of opposition and this year will be no exception. Coach Don Kellett of the Bears personally scouted the Bulldogs during the Muhlenberg game here two weeks ago and is reported to have been little impressed by the Bears-men.

Last week Ursinus was idle which should give it a completely rested squad to face the locals. On the other hand, the Bulldogs have just completed four successive games of major opposition which will probably mean they are due for a let down.

Win Means Title

A victory for the Bulldogs will mean their undisputed conference championship since 1929. The Bears-men were conference titlists in 1927, 1928 and 1929 and were co-champions in 1932, 1933, 1934 and 1938.

Coaches "Ben" Bream and "Pepe" Beeson are fearful of the confident attitude which has seized the Bulldog camp. The Bulldog menors point out that each year the battle with the Bears is one of the hardest of the campaign and this season Ursinus openly admits they would rather defeat the Bulldogs than any other team on their schedule.

It is likely several changes will take place in the Bulldog lineup. Joe Stock suffered a re-occurrence of an old injury in the F. and M. game and will probably be replaced by Pete Bender in the backfield. Roger Smith, who received a muscle injury, is likely to be replaced by Stancel at center.

Final Home Game

Either Levens or Bailey will be at guard in place of Pete Glod who is suffering with a hip injury. Bob Plinchbaugh, end, has been confined to the infirmary for several days. If he is not ready to start his place will be filled by Freeze.

The remainder of Coach Bream's squad is in good condition and no other changes are anticipated in the starting lineup.

Saturday's tilt will mark the final home appearance of Fred Hamilton, Johnny Voyisin, "Reds" Bender and "Bob" Plinchbaugh of the regulars and Diedericks, Sacavage and McClenaghan of the reserves.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Dempsey-Willard fight films convinced New York experts the Dempsey of 1919 would have half killed Joe Louis.

The sensation of North Carolina's secret practice this week has been a back named Roy Connor, hitherto unheard of and may be the surprise package against Duke.

Jimmy Finley, Sarasota, Florida, fight promoter, escaped with a ducking when his new car plunged into 40 feet of water in Tampa bay.

Gus Lesnevich's rosters at Cliffside, New Jersey, have bet $3,000 on him against Billy Conn tonight at 13-5 odds and the Chicago police chief is holding the bets.

Today's guest star—Gene Kessler, Chicago Times: "If Harry Thomas conscience is bothering him so much why doesn't he give that money he says he got for 'laying down' to Galento and Schmelling to the community funds in Philadelphia and New York where the fans were duped?"

Tom Harmon helps pay his way through Michigan by selling girls' shoes which makes it necessary for him to call at the sorority houses.

Not so luff. . . . Gus Henderson, coach of the Detroit Lions gives his players $5 bonuses every time they recover a fumble or intercept a pass.

Joe Louis has made his last ring appearance until he faces Arturo Godoy in the Garden, February 9.

Two guys with an odd sense of humor called up Coach Joe Sheekelski the night before the Holy Cross-Temple game and told him Hank Guard, his star back, was hurt in an auto accident.

One-minute interview—George Weiss, secretary of the Yanks: "Night baseball is a fad. . . . Already there is heavy talk against it by fans in cities where they have it. . . . Some clubs which have invested in nights are doing some serious thinking."

George is right—thinking of enlarging their ball parks.

Last minute B'way odds: Santa Clara-U.C.L.A. even; North Carolina 11-10 over Duke; Georgia Tech 10-9 over Alabama; Notre Dame 3-2 over Northwestern; Purdue 10-5 over Wisconsin; Pittsburgh 8-5 over Nebraska; Oklahoma 17-10 over Missouri; Colgate 17-10 over Syracuse; Michigan 13-5 over Penn; Tennessee 5-1 over Vanderbilt; Ohio State 3-1 over Illinois; Princeton 3-1 over Yale; Tulane 3-1 over Columbia; Minnesota 9-5 over Iowa; Louisiana State 6-5 over Auburn; Detroit 6-5 over Manhattan; Army 13-10 over Penn State; Cornell 9-5 over Dartmouth; Stanford 9-5 over

Biglerville scored its first touchdown in the opening period when a fumble was recovered deep in Maroon territory. A pass to Clapper resulted in the touchdown.

Coach Fred Haehnel's lads scored in the second and third periods with Shoop scoring both touchdowns on runs of nearly 50 yards.

MINERABLE MAROONS

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—The challenge of a Colgate university fraternity football team (Delta Kappa Epsilon) for a post season game with the University of Chicago vastly brought nothing but apathetic silence from the midway tonight. Five members of the Chicago chapter of the same fraternity are on the Maroon squad, which two Chicago sports writers have predicted will upset Oberlin Saturday, 2 to 0, for its second triumph of the year. Chicago defeated Washburn early in the season, 12 to 2, but in other games the Maroons have been trounced 6-0, 61-0, 85-0, 7-0 and 61-0.

MOUNTS FACE HEAVY UPSALA ON SATURDAY

Mt. St. Mary's football team takes on a strong opponent at Emmitsburg Saturday afternoon in Upsala college of East Orange, New Jersey.

Upsala will present a tall, heavy aggregation and to combat these handicaps Coach Jim Draper of the Mountaineers has developed several new spinners and laterals for his speedy backs.

Upsala has won three games, lost three and tied another this season. Outstanding for the New Jersey outfit is Bill Lennon, triple-threat freshman quarterback, who has performed in great style all season.

Bob Stevens is expected to be the spear head of the Mountaineer attack with co-Captain Walsh directing the defensive formations. Stevens is regarded as the best back the Marylanders have had since Ed Abby who starred in 1925.

LOOKING AROUND

It looks like a rough week-end for those selecting probable football winners. The writers' selections are named first:

Southern Methodist-Arkansas; Boston college-Boston U. Cornell-Dartmouth; Albright-F. and M. Gettysburg-Ursinus.

ITS OLD SELF ONCE MORE

Paris, (AP)—The giant stadium of Colombes, on the outskirts of Paris, which served as a concentration camp for some 2,000 Germans caught in France at the outbreak of the war, has been returned to less grim pursuits.

The French government announced that the stadium, which consists of a huge bowl surrounded by subsidiary sports fields, is now "demolished." Once more the thud of leather-shod toes on footballs and the shouts of eager athletes resound where before was heard only the tramp of armed guards outside the gate and the subdued conversation of the prisoners within.

Where the Germans were taken remains a secret. When asked about it one French official merely shrugged, smiled and said, "The provinces," which might mean anywhere in France outside of Paris.

The current building program of the United States navy includes eight battleships.

DYING GIRL, 8, GAINS STRENGTH

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—New hope in a mother's heart and new strength in her daughter's disease-wasted body sprang today from blood which a childless woman gave to the girl on the chance it might save her life.

But science still shook its head and declared that chestnut-haired Kathryn Felt, 8, can never recover from the blood disease—acute lymphatic leukemia—which has been wasting her life away for four months.

From Westport, Connecticut, early Thursday came Mrs. Joseph Root, Jr., 56, a stranger to Kathryn and her parents until she responded Monday to their radio appeal for blood donors.

Mrs. Root, wife of a tank car company executive, believed she had been cured of the disease which afflicts the Felt child, a rare malady causing a breakdown of the body's blood-making machinery. She was treated for it in New York 15 years ago.

One hundred cubic centimeters of her blood streamed Thursday into the dying girl's veins. And Thursday night Kathryn's grief-worn mother, Mrs. Charles Felt, reported from Germanstown hospital:

"She had something to eat for the first time in days. She's stronger. Her condition satisfactory."

Physicians here, however, persisted in the belief that the transfusion would be of little avail; that the disease is incurable and that no one has survived it.

As for Mrs. Root's having had leukemia, Dr. Joseph Fleitas, Kathryn's physician, said that "in the light of present day knowledge" the diagnosis was incorrect.

"It is our opinion, as it has been from the beginning, that there is no known recovery from acute lymphatic leukemia," he and his associates said in statement.

But Kathryn's mother and father are still hoping.

British Hint at Nazi Disagreement

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—High British military authorities expressed "conviction" today that what they called Germany's "indecisive tactics" on the western front were the result of disagreement between Adolf Hitler and his general staff.

These authorities did not disclose what information they had to support this view.

Asked what British policy would be toward any bombing of open cities or any use of gas, one source referred questioners to international law and to provisions for retaliation where the law is violated.

A German warplane flew today over the Shetland islands off the northern Scottish coast, scene of a Nazi air bombing Monday.

Alarms sounded in 13 towns over a wide area also in southwest Lancashire, Cheshire and North Wales after an unidentified plane flew over the region. An all-clear signal was given in a few minutes, however.

Last week Ursinus was idle which should give it a completely rested squad to face the locals. On the other hand, the Bullets have just completed four successive games of major opposition which will probably mean they are due for a let down.

Win Means Title

A victory for the Bullets will mean their undisputed conference championship since 1929. The Bream-men were conference titlists in 1927, 1928 and 1929 and were co-champions in 1932, 1933, 1934 and 1938.

Coaches "Hen" Bream and "Pete" Beeson are fearful of the confident attitude which has seized the Bullet camp. The Bullet mentors point out that each year the battle with the Bears is one of the hardest of the campaign and this season Ursinus openly admits they would rather defeat the Bullets than any other team on their schedule.

It is likely several changes will take place in the Bullet lineup. Joe Stock suffered a re-occurrence of an old injury in the P. and M. game and will probably be replaced by Pete Bender in the backfield. Roger Smith, who received a muscle injury, is likely to be replaced by Stancel at center.

Final Home Game

Either Levens or Bailey will be at guard in place of Pete Glod who is suffering with a hip injury. Bob Flinchbaugh, end, has been confined to the infirmary for several days. If he is not ready to start his place will be filled by Freeze.

The remainder of Coach Bream's squad is in good condition and no other changes are anticipated in the starting lineup. Saturday's tilt will mark the final home appearance of Fred Hamilton, Johnny Yovicin, "Reds" Bender and "Bob" Flinchbaugh of the regulars and Diedricksen, Sacavage and McClenaghan of the reserves.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—The Dempsey-Willard fight films convinced New York experts the Dempsey of 1919 would have half killed Joe Louis. . . . The sensation of North Carolina's secret practice this week has been a back named Roy Connor, hitherto unheard of and he may be the surprise package against Duke. . . . Jimmy Finley, Sarasota, Florida, fight promoter, escaped with a ducking when his new car plunged into 40 feet of water in Tampa bay. . . . Gus Lesnevich's rooters at Cliffside, New Jersey, have bet $3,000 on him against Billy Conn tonight at 13-5 odds and the Cliffside police chief is holding the bets.

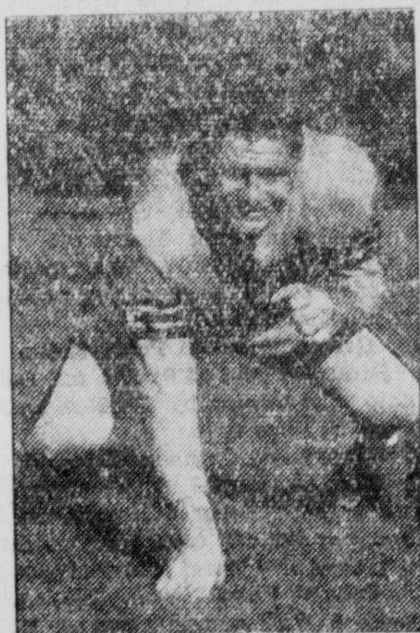

Today's guest star—Gene Kessler, Chicago Times: "If Harry Thomas' conscience is bothering him so much why doesn't he give that money he says he got for 'laying down' to Galento and Schmeling to the community funds in Philadelphia and New York where the fans were duped?"

Tom Harmon helps pay his way through Michigan by selling girls' shoes which makes it necessary for him to call at the sorority houses. Not so tuff. . . . Gus Henderson, coach of the Detroit Lions gives his players $5 bonuses every time they recover a fumble or intercept a pass. . . . Joe Louis has made his last ring appearance until he faces Arturo Godoy in the Garden, February 9. . . . Two guys with an odd sense of humor called up Coach Joe Sheeketski the night before the Holy Cross-Temple game and told him Hank Giardi, his star back, was hurt in an auto accident.

One-minute interview—George Weiss, secretary of the Yanks: "Night baseball is a fad. . . . Already there is heavy talk against it by fans in cities where they have it. . . . Some clubs which have invested in lights are doing some serious thinking. . . . George is right—thinking of enlarging their ball parks."

BIGLER SCRUBS DOWN MAROONS

A long pass to Clapper in the last period followed by a line buck by McCauslin for the extra point gave the Biglerville high reserves a 13-12 victory over the Gettysburg high reserves here Thursday afternoon.

Biglerville scored its first touchdown in the opening period when a fumble was recovered deep in Maroon territory. A pass to Clapper resulted in the touchdown.

Coach Fred Haehnlen's lads scored in the second and third periods with Shoop scoring both touchdowns on runs of nearly 50 yards.

The line-ups:

Hunter in 2 Counties Oppose Open Doe Season

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP)—Hunters' petitions from Forest and Jefferson counties may prevent the state Game commission from opening those counties to gunning for antlerless deer December 1 to 15.

Under the 1939 legislature's amendments to the game code, the commission had declared a two-day open season in those counties and Potter and Warren counties.

The Forest-Jefferson minnows have expressed fears that hunters from sections where does and young bucks may not be shot, will flood their locality. As to their petitions, Seth Gordon, executive secretary of the commission, said:

"We're checking now to determine whether they have the required number of signatures, and hope to know definitely by the first of next week."

The petitions have no effect on the situation in Potter and Warren counties, he said. No similar action has been taken by hunters there.

F-M CARDS 4 NEW GRID FOES

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Four new opponents—two of them among the high ranking football teams of the east appear on the 1940 Franklin and Marshall college football schedule released today by Charles W. Vayser, director of athletics. The season, opening here with Lebanon Valley, will include games with Dartmouth and New York university. The schedule: September 28, Lebanon Valley, home; October 5, Dartmouth, away; October 12, University of Richmond, home; October 19, Muhlenberg, home; October 16, Gettysburg, away; November 2, Albright, away; November 9, New York university, away; November 16, St. Joseph's (Philadelphia), home; November 21, Ursinus home.

CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT

New York, Nov. 17 (AP)—Handsome is as handsome does—and in this case "handsome" (in the person of Billy Conn, the Pittsburgh Adonis) should do very well for himself. For Billy will be an overwhelming favorite as he lays his light-heavyweight title on the line tonight against Gus Lesnevich, scrappy Cliffside (New Jersey) scrapper, in a Madison Square Garden show. The fight will be Conn's second defense of the title he won from Mello Bettina last July 13 in the same ring. In a return engagement with Mello at Forbes field in Pittsburgh, September 25, Billy retained the title with a decision after 15 gruelling rounds.

MOUNTS FACE HEAVY UPSALA ON SATURDAY

Mt. St. Mary's football team takes on a strong opponent at Emmitsburg Saturday afternoon in Upsala college of East Orange, New Jersey. Upsala will present a tall, heavy aggregation and to combat these handicaps Coach Jim Draper of the Mountaineers has developed several new spinners and laterals for his speedy backs.

Upsala has won three games, lost three and tied another this season. Outstanding for the New Jersey outfit is Bill Lennon, triple-threat freshman quarterback, who has performed in great style all season.

Bob Stevens is expected to be the spear head of the Mountaineer attack with co-Captain Walsh directing the defensive formations. Stevens is regarded as the best back the Marylanders have had since Ed Abby who starred in 1925.

Gettysburg and Adams county football fans will have three games offered them next week to wind up the 1939 football campaign. On Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock the Dickinson and Gettysburg college freshmen teams clash here. The annual Gettysburg-Dickinson varsity tilt will be staged in the Hershey stadium Thanksgiving Day at 2 o'clock. The season will be brought to a close when Gettysburg and Hanover high renew football warfare on the high school field next Saturday afternoon.

Coach Jack Yohe's Biglerville high school's football team will close its season Saturday afternoon by meeting Williamstown high on the Biglerville gridiron. Despite three straight setbacks at the hands of strong opponents Biglerville has high hopes of bringing its season to a successful close on Saturday.

On Saturday afternoon Boy Scout troop 79 pits its football teams against the reserve team of Central Catholic high at McSherrystown.

MISERABLE MAROONS

Chicago, Nov. 16 (AP)—The challenge of a Colgate university fraternity football team (Delta Kappa Epsilon) for a post season game with the University of Chicago varsity brought nothing but apathetic silence from the midway tonight. Five members of the Chicago chapter of the same fraternity are on the Maroon squad, which two Chicago sports writers have predicted will upset Oberlin Saturday, 2 to 0, for its second triumph of the year. Chicago defeated Wabash early in the season, 12 to 2, but in other games the Maroons have been trounced 6-0, 61-0, 85-0, 47-0 and 61-0.

PENN STATE CARDS

GRID GAMES State College, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Football schedules announced by Penn State for the next two seasons call for two games each with four new foes—New York university, Temple, South Carolina and West Virginia. Four 1939 opponents, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Army and Maryland, won't be played. Colgate returns to the 1941 schedule for the first time since 1932.

NUGENT DEFERS DEALS

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—Gerry Nugent, president of the Phillies, announces that all deals concerning his team are off until the National league meeting in Cincinnati. "We had two or three red hot irons in the fire but decided to let them cool off until the confab in Ohio," he said. Nugent is reported to be interested in Zeke Bonura, who battled so well but fielded so poorly for the New York Giants.

THREE NEW FOES FOR W-J

Washington, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Three new opponents are included on Washington and Jefferson college's 1940 grid schedule. The newcomers, Allegheny, Mt. Union and Kent state, replace Bradley Tech, Akron university and Wooster. Bethany, Muskingum, Dickinson, Geneva and Lafayette, all played this year, were retained.

DREAM DASHED

Monessen, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—After nine straight triumphs, South Huntingdon high had its championship hopes blasted by Centerville to the tune of 39 to 0 Thursday night. The defeat gave Glassport its fifth B championship.

ITS OLD SELF ONCE MORE

Paris, (AP)—The giant stadium of Colombes, on the outskirts of Paris, which served as a concentration camp for some 2,000 Germans caught in France at the outbreak of the war, has been returned to less grim pursuits.

The French government announced that the stadium, which consists of a huge bowl surrounded by subsidiary sports fields, is now "demolished." Once more the thud of leather-shod toes on footballs and the shouts of eager athletes resound where before was heard only the tramp of armed guards outside the gate and the subdued conversation of the prisoners within.

Where the Germans were taken remains a secret. When asked about it one French official merely shrugged, smiled and said, "The Provines," which might mean anywhere in Franch outside of Paris.

The current building program of the United States navy includes eight battleships.

DYING GIRL, 8, GAINS STRENGTH

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—New hope in a mother's heart and new strength in her daughter's disease-wasted body sprung today from blood which a childless woman gave to the girl on the chance it might save her life.

But science still shook its head and declared that chestnut-haired Kathryn Felt, 8, can never recover from the blood disease—acute lymphatic leukemia—which has been draining her life away for four months.

From Westport, Connecticut, early Thursday came Mrs. Joseph Root, Jr., 56, a stranger to Kathryn and her parents until she responded Monday to their radio appeal for blood donors.

Mrs. Root, wife of a tank car company executive, believed she had been cured of the disease which afflicts the Felt child, a rare malady causing a breakdown of the body's blood-making machinery. She was treated for it in New York 15 years ago.

One hundred cubic centimeters of her blood streamed Thursday into the dying girl's veins. And Thursday night Kathryn's grief-worn mother, Mrs. Charles Felt, reported from Germantown hospital:

"She had something to eat for the first time in days. She's stronger. Her condition satisfactory."

Physicians here, however, persisted in the belief that the transfusion would be of little avail; that the disease is incurable and that no one has survived it.

As for Mrs. Root's having had leukemia, Dr. Joseph Fleitas, Kathryn's physician, said that "in the light of present day knowledge" the diagnosis was incorrect.

"It is our opinion, as it has been from the beginning, that there is no known recovery from acute lymphatic leukemia," he and his associates said in statement.

But Kathryn's mother and father are still hoping.

Stablemen tried for two days to nurse him back to health but finally summoned S. P. C. A. agents to put him out of his misery.

British Hint at Nazi Disagreement

London, Nov. 17 (AP)—High British military authorities expressed "conviction" today that what they called Germany's "indecisive tactics" on the western front were the result of disagreement between Adolf Hitler and his general staff.

These authorities did not disclose what information they had to support this view.

Asked what British policy would be toward any bombing of open cities or any use of gas, one source referred questioners to international law and to provisions for retaliation where the law is violated.

A German warplane flew today over the Shetland islands off the northern Scottish coast, scene of a Nazi air bombing Monday.

Alarms sounded in 13 towns over a wide area also in southwest Lancashire, Cheshire and North Wales after an unidentified plane flew over the region. An all-clear signal was given in a few minutes, however.

JOB DRIVE FOR 800 IN COUNTY TO BE ORGANIZED

The board of a train for a Texas agent. He hired carpenters and others to re-roof his Plymouth.

Among other early reports of job-seeking activities to the campaign's headquarters were these:
John N. Gish, East Stroudsburg, chairman of the Monroe county committee said he was named local organizing committee for all boroughs and townships in his district.
William S. Shipley, president of the York Ice Machinery corporation, announced a 2100 men, announced a 12 percent increase in orders during the last five months which he would make possible a "substantial" increase in employment.
Robert C. Gordon, superintendent of the Chambersburg hospital, reported a $3,500 modernization and improvement program.

Dana Jones, secretary of the Manufacturers' Association of Erie, Pa., reported that the Erie industries returned more people to employment during the months of September and October than were re-employed for any corresponding months during the last 15 years.

Rose Bampton Pleases Audience

ability. In response to applause, Miss Bampton sang "The Rosary," by Nevin, a glorious conclusion to the first part of the program and most appealing to her audience.

The second half of the program was varied and beautifully rendered. Miss Bampton's first number was the modern "Chère Nuit" of Bachet, followed by Debussy's "Fandango" in which one could hear the light melodious strains of the nightingale. Miss Bampton gave credit to her accompanist for his support and interpretation.

Renders Favorite Number
"None But The Lonely Heart," by Tichakowsky, was sung with great tenderness. It was beautifully rendered.

This last number of this group, an aria "Viva d'Arte," from "Tosca" by Puccini, is always a favorite and was done with perfect finesse.

Miss Bampton responded with an encore from "Carmen" by Bizet, "Seguidilla." That was followed by "Oh, No, John!" an old folk song, which again displayed Miss Bampton's lovely personality.

The last group was headed by "Music I Heard With You," by Richard Hageman, which Miss Bampton sang in her clear, melodious voice. "A Piper," Michael Head, showed to perfection Miss Bampton's diction, which is a great asset in her singing. The piano in this number was the solo with the voice as the accompaniment. Miss Bampton again gave honors to Mr. Kritz after this rendition.

A song appropriate to the season was "Glimmering 'Till Me, O Blue, Blue Sky." The finale of the program, "Rejoice Greatly," from "The Messiah" by Handel, added a celestial touch to a most varied program. The audience did not stir at the completion of the program, eagerly waiting for more.

Request Number
Miss Bampton most graciously presented "Un Bel Di," from "Madame Butterfly," by Puccini, as an encore to her concluding numbers. Again the audience waited. Miss Bampton responded with a request number "American Lullaby," by Richard Hageman, which was dedicated to Miss Bampton by Miss Rich. She also sang "Lullaby a la Mode," by Russell Rand, a short character song. Each of these numbers made a big hit with the audience, who still remained seated, applauding vigorously. Miss Bampton concluded the evening with "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Miss Bampton will be interviewed by her husband Wilfred Pelleber, director of the Metropolitan auditorium, Sunday afternoon.

Flowers for Miss Bampton were presented by Jack's flower shop and the rostrum decorations were furnished by the Wayside flower shop, 438 S.

The scientist, who spoke to bacteriologists from throughout the country meeting at the University of Notre Dame, is Dr. Rudolph Glaser. The worm, Doctor Glaser said, eats beetles as beetles eat your shrubbery.

Later in the day Capone took a two-room $30-a-day suite in a Baltimore hospital, where he will be treated for paresis. The picture was taken by a Chicago Times photographer. the girl he loved. What did he do?

He chose banishment and happiness with his boyhood sweetheart.

That, briefly, is the fateful decision of Karl Kritz, accompanist for Rose Bampton, Metropolitan Opera Company's leading soprano, who appeared in a recital here last night.

Karl Kritz is a little, rotund man, fair and full face with medium brown, pompadoured hair. He is quiet, modest and unassuming. A very pleasant young man of 33 years, who has found new happiness in his newly adopted land—the United States.

"Any American who does not like this country should go to Germany, spend two or three weeks, or months, then return here and kiss the very ground he walks upon, so thankful should he be that he is a citizen of this great country."

That's the way, Karl Kritz, best describes his happiness, peace of mind and contentment in his new home. He lives in New York city.

Yes, Karl Kritz married the girl of his boyhood affection. They have a five-month-old daughter, Susan, and these three, the one-time Catholic choir boy of Vienna, the daughter of a one-time wealthy Jew and their little baby daughter have found their own happiness in a land where men and women are men and women and not pawn-chess in the smeared hands of a minority of fanatics.

Karl Kritz was born to be a musician. It was his first love and his flare for singing soon attracted him to a wealthy Viennese whose hobby was financing choirs in what was once the gay and festive Vienna.

Karl, when a mere boy, sang soprano in a Catholic choir. He then spent ten years at the Academy of Music in Staats, studying piano, voice, violin, organ, conducting, theory and composition.

At the age of 20 he had achieved such heights in the music world that he was chosen to conduct the 96-piece orchestra at the Nuremberg Opera House. For two years he was the first conductor of the Philharmonic civic opera at Nuremberg-Furth. He was climbing the difficult stairs that lead to world fame in the field of music and he was happy. Even then he had dreams of happiness with the girl of his first sincere love.

Wilson has been executive vice president of the company and Reed assistant to the president. Young and Swope will assume the titles, respectively, of honorary chairman and honorary president. Wilson began his career as an office boy at the age of thirteen with the Sprague Electric company, a former constituent company of General Electric.

SHARK IS USEFUL
Tallahassee, Fla., Nov. 17 (AP)—The common shark, long considered the pest of Florida's salt water, is giving up his liver to make a $100,000-a-year business. The oil from the liver is rich in vitamin A and is used in medicinal compounds. This fins make soup, his skin makes leather, and his teeth are used as prizes by a cereal manufacturing company. Dr. L. L. Rusko, assistant professor of animal nutrition at the University of Florida, told about the shark's commercial values at a meeting of the Florida Academy of Sciences today.

Fidler's Nazism had gained control of the Third German Reich. The high command of the swastika forces were regular patrons of the opera and they enjoyed the conducting of Karl Kritz.

Karl had reached the pinnacle in Germany's Berlin. Now he could marry Fridl Goldsmith, a pretty, 23-year-old Jewess. Her father owned a huge metal works. He was immensely wealthy. He did not like the treatment accorded the Jews by Hitler and his Nazis but he always felt and believed that it would eventually turn out all right and that he could regain his rapidly waning prestige and prominence.

Then came the Gestapo's ultimatum.

Karl Kritz came to America. Where else could he turn to continue in greater safety than the U. S. A?

While in Berlin he was under what they call the Prussian law. He was an Austrian and so long as he was associated with the Berlin Opera House he was safe. Goering passes on all opera house contracts. Goering determines and decides who is a Jew and who is not. You may be a Jew and still be in the good graces of Goering, but not for long.

Karl came to this country on his visit with Fridl Goldsmith, who has relatives in New York city. Karl returned by Fridl dared not. She remained here. Karl refused to sign the Gestapo papers and he managed to secure a visa to leave Germany to join and marry Fridl. He had met her while she was a member of the Corps de ballet in Nuremberg.

Fridl's father lost everything. The Gestapo took his factory. They took his money. They took over his villa and smashed everything they could lay their hands on. They even cut the tires off his cars and then slammed him in the dreaded concentration camp at Dachau. From early morning until noon Fridl's father was made to stand perfectly still, at attention, not permitted to move so much as a muscle. They beat him. He had a nervous breakdown and they released him. He managed to find his way out of Germany, after he had signed papers turning all his possessions over to the Nazis, accompanied by his worried wife and son. Today they are in London, awaiting an opportunity to come to this country. Karl plans to send the money to make the trip.

Incidentally, Fridl's father fought with the German army during the first World war. After that he resumed his peace-time pursuits and all the things that he worked for and achieved, he lost, overnight, to the Hitler clique. Before he could leave Germany he was forced to sign papers, attesting to the "fine" treatment accorded him in the concentration camp.

Karl Kritz admits that he made a serious mistake last year. He decided to return to Vienna to visit his father and mother. He entered Germany without difficulty, visited his parents and then went to Berlin to visit friends.

One day he made an appointment to meet a friend at one of Berlin's popular restaurants. Karl was fifteen minutes late. Those fifteen minutes saved him. During that brief interlude the Gestapo, tracking and hunting down all Austrians, who had fled Vienna in an attempt to gain refuge in the larger cities of the Reich, had "cleaned out" the restaurant of all Austrians. Today those Austrian patrons of that restaurant, including Karl's friend, are in a German concentration camp.

Karl Kritz wasted no time leaving Berlin. He took the first train out and managed to reach the border of Switzerland. At Basle he was taken from the train by German agents and confined to the border police station. The Swiss officials ruled that that portion of the station house where Karl was confined was in Switzerland and Karl was given his freedom—for fourteen days. Those fourteen days were all that Karl wanted. His boat for America left before the expiration of that period and Karl again reached this land of the free.

Karl's brother is a captain in the German army but he hasn't heard from him, or his parents and grandmother, in months. He likes to send them food because they are given a bare sufficiency to exist. But Karl doesn't know whether they ever receive it. Karl and his wife have their first papers to become American citizens and they propose to be American citizens the rest of their lives.

Workers Disband Carlisle Union

Workers of the Carlisle Shoe company, Carlisle, at a meeting Wednesday night, voted to disband their union which last spring won recognition as employees' bargaining agency following a long fight between the C.I.O. and A.F.L.

Meeting in the Cumberland county court house, the workers instructed officers to give the prescribed ninety-day notice to company officials and national union headquarters that they do not wish to renew the sole bargaining agency agreement on expiration next March. Members declared the vote was "overwhelming."

"The union hasn't benefited us one bit," one worker stated. "We have paid in thirty-five cents each week in dues and have received nothing for it. Together our dues have amounted to $4,000 and most of this has gone out of town."

The workers complained that the union organizers' promises of increased wages never materialized. The union was Local 580, of the Boot and Shoe Workers of America, an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor. For weeks last spring agents of both the C.I.O. and A.F.L. were busy recruiting members in a busy drive to secure sole bargaining rights. The issue was decided March 17 at a special election supervised by N.L.R.B. officials.

At the meeting on Wednesday night Michael Tosoro, A.F.L. organizer, told the workers that it was their union which kept the company from moving from Carlisle to Annapolis last summer.

Charles H. Nickel, paid agent for the local which maintains an office in Carlisle, and who was chosen from the ranks of the workers when the organization was formed, said the action taken Wednesday night was not according to the prescribed method for ending a recognition agreement.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Locates in Bendersville: Dr. Byron C. Jones, for the past eleven years a practicing physician at Bethlehem, this state, has moved to Bendersville to begin his practice of medicine there. For the time being he will be located at the home of W. C. Weiner.

Couple Wedded in Local Church: A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Francis Xavier church on Wednesday morning at the 7:30 o'clock mass when Miss Mary L. Paxton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Paxton, Gettysburg, and Samuel J. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thomas, Gettysburg, R. 1, were married by the Rev. Father Mark E. Stock.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Cox, of Raleigh, North Carolina, and William H. Thomas.

Biggest Parade Ever Held Here Features Armistice Day Events: Unparalleled in the history of patriotic demonstrations in Gettysburg was the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post's celebration of Armistice Day, Tuesday, marking the sixth anniversary of the signing of the agreement which brought the most gigantic war of all time to an end.

The Legion's celebration was six-fold and each facet was an Armistice Day celebration in itself. Beginning with the parade, the events of the afternoon and evening were the coronation of Miss Madolyn Culp, sixteen-year old High School student as "Queen of the Military Ball"; an address by former United States Senator Thomas P. Gore, a nationally known figure; dedication of the Legion's flagstaff in front of the Post's home, a gift of Allen B. Plank; an ex-service men's banquet at the Eagle Hotel, and a Military Ball at Natural Springs Park at which the "Queen" and her court were guests of honor.

After the singing of "America" and prayer led by Rev. W. C. Robinson, William G. Weaver, commander of the local Legion post, called for two minutes silent prayer from the speaker's stand in Center Square.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg College, was introduced and after introductory remarks, crowned Miss Culp as "Queen." The young lady was given an ovation when she rose to have the crown of white flowers placed upon her head.

RESORT HOTEL LOBBY
Eight o'clock and dinner ended.
In the hotel lobby sitting
Children by a nurse attended;
Three old ladies at their knitting,
Wives and husbands chaired together;
Seven men on a brief vacation,
Talking sickness and the weather,
Business and its ruin.

Fellow of the band starts crooning.
Widows gaze at him in rapture.
Near a couple honey-mooning.
Both delighted with their capture.
Some behind newspapers hidden—
Fixtures found in every lobby—
Golfers riding, being ridden
By their all-consuming hobby.

Strangers ever going, coming.
Now and then a peal of laughter;
Click of nervous fingers strumming
Like ten beetles on a raft;
People eyeing one another,
Suffering two hours of dead time,
Yawns which hands can't wholly smother—
Waiting—wishing it were bed-time.

Steel Company to Sell Monessen Plant

Monessen, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation has informed city council its huge national works here never will be used again to manufacture tin-plate and is for sale.

Mayor James Gold said the announcement was made by the corporation in appealing for a reduction from $1,175,000 to $750,000 in the assessment of the plant, which has been idle nearly two years.

A company spokesman said that if the plant was used again it would provide only temporary employment to 200 or 300 persons compared with the 1,800 once working there.

The corporation reported it had rejected a $150,000 bid for the site from an undisclosed bidder and had fixed a price of $250,000 for the property with plans to sell "to any prospect at that price whether competitor or not," said Mayor Gold.

A Pittsburgh spokesman for the company reported the mill was worth about $200,000 as scrap and said an appraisal valuation for sale has not been made and therefore no actual sale price set.

ALL WAS WELL—UNTIL THE BILL CAME
Mitchell, S. D. (AP)—High School Coach Joe Quintal ate expensive pheasant before the hunting season opened, but he was not in trouble with the law.

He heard a school window crash. In the hall, a crippled bird was skidding from wall to wall. Fleet-footed Quintal caught it, and turned it over to the game warden who killed it and returned the bird to Quintal.

The school board billed the coach six dollars for a broken window, figuring it was his bird that did the damage.

YOUR PRIVILEGE TO SHARE

WE can be quietly assured that universal Utopias will forever exist only in dreams and in books. But each of us may have the happy privilege of creating a personal Utopia and sharing it with others.

Few of us enjoy supreme joy alone. We are happiest when we can share a sight of beauty, or a human thrill with some one else. A favorite line of mine is this: "He climbs highest, who helps another up."

The late Col. Nelson, founder of the Kansas City Star, was known as a rather uncompromising character. He once stated that "he couldn't sleep well—without his enemies." But I knew him well, and loved him. He had a gentle and considerate nature. On one of his long automobile trips through the West he was daily inspired by the beauties of that marvelous country. And every day, as he sighted some point of interest—a mountain, a sunset, or some other phase of natural grandeur, he would not comment until he had called his colored driver to him, stating that he wanted him to appreciate beauty as he did.

Most of the joy resulting from a kind deed, or from some gift to a friend, is that which the giver gets.

By right of inheritance every human being should have his share of human happiness. And that share should be all that he deserves. Some of us are more fortunate than others so that it is up to us to share what we have. Material wealth doesn't enter into sharing as a requisite. Some of us have only our heart, our cheer, our spirit, to share.

Chapter 36

THE INQUEST

IF THE tension at Tuck's garden party had been unbearable, that at the inquest was beyond words. The announcement that there would be an inquest on the body of Alix Lissey had thrown the campus into turmoil, or, rather, those of the group who did not already expect it. The day was very hot. The inquest had been called in the coroner's office, a stuffy little room in the court house. The windows were dusty and streaked, and the varnish on the heavy plain chairs and tables was sticky in the heat. But no one seemed to notice. They filed in silently, and sat down without murmuring about the weather or the discomfort.

Alix Lissey, Spinster, was dead. She had died of the effects of poisoning on Sunday, at the age of fifty-two. Only Mrs. Deane showed any interest as that fact was read out.

The coroner was an apple-cheeked little man with a figure like a robin's, and a high chirping voice quite out of keeping with death, and death by violence in particular. He put his questions cheerfully, with no apparent realization of the dreadful meaning that might lie behind the answers. Yet he let no single point escape him, and once or twice let his gaze wander as if by accident to the District Attorney and the Police Commissioner, sitting quietly at the back of the room.

Tuck was the first witness called. "Mrs. Forrester, the deceased was your guest on the afternoon of the day she died?"

"She was."

"At what time did she arrive at your house?"

"About quarter after four, I think."

"Just what do you mean? Ten minutes after four or twenty-five minutes after?"

"Almost exactly quarter after. I-I had been watching the time."

"Why had you been watching the time, Mrs. Forrester?"

"I . . ."

"The exact reason please."

"The conversation wasn't going very well," Tuck said bravely. "I was hoping for a diversion, when I saw Miss Lissey coming."

"That does not place the time."

"The Devoes had come exactly at four o'clock," Tuck explained. "They had been there about fifteen minutes. I remember looking at my watch at twelve minutes after, and in just a minute Miss Lissey came."

"So it was with the Devoes that the conversation lagged?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"I don't know."

"Just what was this conversation that lagged, Mrs. Forrester? Can you repeat it?"

"Why—it wasn't really a conversation at all. Mr. Devoe, I think, was talking to Miss Temple. I said something to Mrs. Devoe about the sundial and he broke in. His mother didn't seem to hear me, and he explained to her."

"Had you noticed that Mrs. Devoe was deaf before that time?"

"Preoccupied."

"No. I didn't think she was deaf then. It was just—that she was preoccupied."

"There was more to the conversation?"

"No. Miss Lissey came just then. Seating the Devoes and greeting them and Mrs. Murchison had taken the rest of the time."

"Then Mrs. Devoe was preoccupied when she first came to the party?"

"She seemed to be."

"Did you note signs of preoccupation in any other of your guests?"

"No."

"Did this preoccupation of Mrs. Devoe's continue all through the afternoon?"

"Perhaps I shouldn't have called it preoccupation, Dr. Mayhew," Tuck said honestly. "Mrs. Devoe is always very quiet and self-contained."

"What do you mean by always?"

"Since I have known her."

"That is, within the last ten days?"

"Yes."

He paused. His round little blue eyes regarded her seriously. "Mrs. Forrester, you are ready to swear that there was originally no poison in any of the food served at your house on Sunday?"

"Certainly, Dr. Mayhew!"

"Your servant—would you consider her to be capable of putting poison in anyone's food?"

Charlotte Jean, at the side of the room, gasped audibly. Tuck gave her a little reassuring smile.

"Most certainly not. She is the last person in the world who would do such a thing."

"She has worked for you for some time?"

"Two years."

"You were with Miss Lissey when she died, Mrs. Forrester. Did she advance any statement there that might throw light on her death?"

"Just what do you mean, Dr. Mayhew?"

"Did she suggest that she knew that she was dying, or that she knew she had been poisoned?"

"Yes," Tuck said quietly, with a quiver in her lip. "She said, 'I know too much.'"

The clock suddenly ticked loudly, clearly, in the room.

"You understood her, Mrs. Forrester? Do you know what she meant?"

"Yes—I do."

"Does that not suggest to you that she knew she was dying?"

"Yes. I think she knew. Before we did."

"And she knew why she was dying? Why someone, let us say, wanted her to die?"

"Yes."

"Mrs. Forrester, did you get the impression that Miss Lissey had committed suicide?"

"No," Tuck said clearly. "No."

"Thank you, Charlotte Jean Soames."

Charlotte Jean, with a very white face and a nose red from being rubbed in her excitement, curtsied a little as she made her answers.

"Miss Soames, did you put poison in any food or drink that was served in Mrs. Forrester's house on Sunday?"

"No, sir, I should say not. I don't know nothing about poison, sir."

"Well then, did anyone come into your kitchen on Sunday and tamper with the food?"

"No, sir. Nobody came into my kitchen on Sunday for anything whatever, except that Gordon Deane, eating of all the cookies, but that was after the rest had had their tea, sir. Unless you mean Mr. Devoe, and he only came for a glass of water."

"A glass of water?"

"Yes, sir. For his mother, he said. She was feelin' faint like."

"I see. Did he touch anything except his glass of water?"

"He carried out a tray for me, sir, but there wasn't no food on it."

"An empty tray?"

"No, sir, it was a tray of tea-cups."

"Full, or empty?"

"Full, sir. Mrs. Forrester had been pourin' in the garden, but some of them wanted their cups filled again, and the tea she had wasn't hot enough to see sent me in with the cups on a tray to fill them in the kitchen. That was the tray Mr. Devoe carried out, sir."

"Can you remember whether or not Miss Lissey's cup was on that tray?"

"No, sir. I never knew whose cups they was."

He turned aside for a moment to Tuck. "Mrs. Forrester, can you answer the last question?"

"No, Dr. Mayhew. I didn't know that Mr. Devoe had carried out a tray of cups."

"You don't remember whether Miss Lissey's cup went into the house to be filled or not?"

"I'm sorry, Dr. Mayhew, I can't remember."

He turned back to Charlotte Jean, now rubbing her nose frantically. "None of the other guests were in your kitchen at all, then?"

"No, sir."

"That will do, then."

Mr. Deane was called next, but he had nothing to add to the evidence. However, his wife had.

at all out of the ordinary on Sunday afternoon," she said, fumbling with her belt and pulling at the side of her strange hat. "That is, nothing that might explain at all the terrible thing that happened there—if it really did happen, which I simply can't credit for only ourselves were there, and I'm sure—"

"I gather that you did observe something a little out of the ordinary, Mrs. Deane?" Dr. Mayhew broke in rather severely.

"Well, it wasn't particularly important, and I really don't like to speak of it. Poor Miss Lissey is dead, and I'm sure it seems almost sacrilegious."

"What is it, Mrs. Deane, may I ask?"

"Must I answer, then? Somehow it seems hardly delicate. It was just something that indicated to me that poor Miss Lissey was hardly herself that afternoon. She was so particular about her clothes, you know, so particular, and had such good taste. I used to marvel at the beautiful costumes she had—but of course she had the leisure to think about those things—well, I must go on—it was just that she wore a beautiful mauve flowered chiffon dress on Sunday with a horsehair hat to match, and I happened to notice—you will pardon the intimacy, of course—I happened to notice that she wore a white slip underneath it. Now she has a simply lovely mauve slip that was made with that dress. I've seen it several times, and I'm quite sure she wouldn't have been thinking at all when she dressed or she would never have appeared in the white one. Why, the mauve one made simply all the difference in the world."

DEWEY TO TALK ON U. S. ISSUES

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey's decision to break his long silence on national issues next month pumped new interest today into the 1940 republican presidential race in which Governor Arthur H. James, of Pennsylvania, has become a more important figure.

Sharing attention—on the democratic side—was Thursday night's Baltimore speech by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), in which he praised President Roosevelt's record, called for a united party to assure victory next year, and explained that his own conflicts with the chief executive had been over methods rather than fundamental beliefs.

Some party leaders who have been watching the republican contest from the sidelines said that Dewey's chances of winning a place on the national ticket hinged largely on the stand he takes on major questions of the day.

Conceding that he has won a name for himself as New York's district attorney, they have been asking:

"Where does he stand on national issues?"

The announcement that Dewey would make the first of a series of midwest speeches at Minneapolis about December 6 coincided with the start of cross-country speaking tours by two others mentioned for the republican nomination.

Senators Taft, of Ohio, and Bridges, of New Hampshire, are on the stump, simultaneously with the launching of a boom for Pennsylvania's Governor James. His name was put forward Thursday by two big Pennsylvania republicans—for former Senator Joseph R. Grundy and National Committeeman G. Mason Owlett.

Unlike past contests, a majority of the republican "possibilities" for 1940 are first-termers in their respective fields. Besides those already listed, Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, is another potential candidate who is serving his first term.

Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and McNary, of Oregon, are in their second and fourth terms, respectively, but they are the exceptions.

Byrd Ship to Take On Two Airplanes

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—Lugging the ponderous snowmobile Penguin 1 athwart its decks, Admiral Richard E. Byrd's flagship North Star neared Philadelphia today to take on airplanes and weather instruments for government-sponsored Antarctic exploration.

Admiral Byrd may join the ship here. She was expected to dock today after a two-day trip from Boston.

Waiting on a wharf for storage aboard the North Star were two bi-motored Curtiss condor planes with their fuel capacities increased and their engines ready for sub-zero flying. They are equipped with skis.

Five fliers from the Navy and Marine Corps, none with previous Polar experience, have been signed as volunteers to man the planes. If Admiral Byrd does not come aboard the North Star here, he says he will join the expedition in Panama.

Another expedition ship, the Bear, is due to sail from Boston in a few days.

EUROPEAN WAR ACTION CENTERS ON VERBAL FRONT

(By the Associated Press)
Europe's conflict continued today to be fought mainly on the verbal front.

British military authorities offered the "conviction" that disagreement between Adolf Hitler and his general staff caused "indefinite tactics" by the nazis on the western front.

German authorities already had hinted their tactics would be changed from the defensive to the offensive—but at the same time weighed anew how the nazis would feel toward a mediation offer by President Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt's name was injected into informal peace talk in Germany October 6. German authorities said Hitler would accept an armistice if proposed by the American executive with a view to a general European settlement.

That talk ran its course in a week when Washington made clear it had received no formal invitation to offer mediation and even if it should receive one the chances were it would take no action unless assured in advance that Great Britain and France would listen.

Berlin introduced President Roosevelt's name again today, saying Germany would not be interested in any general mediation offer but would be likely to respond if he asked the belligerents to outline their war aims as a move toward finding a common basis for mediation.

Both French and German communiques recorded minor activity on the western front, but warplanes were busy.

Air alarms were sounded in Lyon and Marseille as German airplanes continued flights over southeastern France; a German plane flew over the Shetland Islands, north of Scotland.

The Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, the territory Germany took in the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, continued to test German authorities.

Hitler's black-shirted elite guards occupied Czech high schools and a technical institute and took away some 1,200 students.

There was no immediate explanation—but 2,000 students demonstrated on Wednesday against the government Germany set up in the protectorate.

A meeting of the allied supreme war council was planned in London; French Premier Daladier left Paris to attend.

The British war office called for 20,000 men for home defense battalions; at the same time a recruiting campaign opened to increase from 20,000 to 40,000 the strength of the women's auxiliary territorial service whose members serve as clerks, cooks, chauffeurs, etc.

Operations in the undeclared war between Japan and China shifted to southeastern China, near China's avenue to French Indo-China and British Burma. Japanese reported their forces had driven 30 miles north from the coast since Wednesday.

Find New Uses For Plywood

State College, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Opening of a wider field for use of plywood was forecast today by Dr. R. K. Bernhard, of Penn State college, with the development of a new "super-pressed" product that can be fabricated and alloyed like metals to increase its strength as much as 127 per cent above normal wood.

The head of the college department of engineering mechanics where the super-pressed plywood is being tested said the product combined the feature of hot pressed synthetic resin adhesives, which were developed several years ago to replace ordinary glues with a new advantage—pressures as high as 1,500 pounds per square inch.

Among uses listed for the new

TRAINING FOR OFFICERS

Indiantown Gap, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—The "brass hats" got their turn at winter-time combat training today.

Major General Edward Martin, commander of the Pennsylvania National Guard, and infantry and artillery brigade commanders, came to the state's military reservation for a week-end of practice. Numerous other units of the 28th division meantime, at Indiantown Gap and various other localities, either are finishing or starting portions of the seven days' extra field training ordered recently by the War department.

OF ALL THE PLACES

Miami, Fla. (AP)—There was, it seems, a slight case of mistaken address.

A customer bought some groceries, tendered a $10 check and received $8 change. As an afterthought he ordered $12 worth more, to be delivered C.O.D.

"Where'll I send it?" asked the clerk.

"To 811 N.W. 75th St."

The clerk started, then inquired gently:

"How long have you lived there?"

"Oh, I just bought the house three days ago."

"The heck you did!" roared the clerk. "That's where I live!"

The customer fled but the clerk nabbed him on the street and called police, who jailed the party of the first part on a worthless check charge.

3rd Term Answer Usually Ends With Same Remark From President Roosevelt

Hyde Park, Nov. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt laughed long and loudly today when reporters told him there had been considerable speculation about what he meant when, in laying the cornerstone for the Jefferson memorial in Washington Wednesday, he said he hoped by January, 1941, to be able to return for the dedication of the memorial itself.

Slapping a hand on his knee at a press conference, the chief executive chuckled that he had made the remark deliberately, but he still did not amplify it.

There had been numerous attempts to analyze his statement about January, 1941, to see whether it would throw any light on the third term issue.

The President's present term expires on January 20, 1941. The memorial will be dedicated the same month, but Mr. Roosevelt did not indicate Wednesday whether he hoped to return for that ceremony before or after January 20, or as a government official or private citizen.

Other dates in a saga on the third term issue:

June 29, 1937—At the White House in reply to a reporter's question as to whether he would seek a third term, the President threw back his head, laughed and suggested the newsmen put on a dunce cap and stand in the corner.

July 9, 1937—Mrs. Roosevelt, appearing at a question and answer session of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Home club of Hyde Park, said she hoped her husband would not seek a third term.

October 13, 1938—From Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President—"I wouldn't know actually whether he plans to run again, but personally, I hope he doesn't. Being the son of the President is sometimes a handicap."

July 3, 1939—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President—"Everything is up to father."

July 20, 1939—In reply to a reporter's question about a third term, the President threw back his head, laughed and suggested the newsmen put on a dunce cap and stand in the corner.

July 22, 1939—Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, said that as far as health alone was concerned, her son could stand a third term very well.

August 12, 1939—On the 12th anniversary of Calvin Coolidge's statement, "I do not choose to run," the President was asked about the third term. He threw back his head and laughed, and then asked if the reporter was suggesting that he

Numerous other units of the 28th division meantime, at Indiantown Gap and various other localities, either are finishing or starting portions of the seven days' extra field training ordered recently by the War department.

Both French and German communiques recorded minor activity on the western front, but warplanes were busy.

Air alarms were sounded in Lyon and Marseille as German airplanes continued flights over southeastern France; a German plane flew over the Shetland islands, north of Scotland.

The Bohemia-Moravia protectorate, the territory Germany took in the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia, continued to test German authorities.

Hitler's black-shirted elite guards occupied Czech high schools and a technical institute and took away some 1,200 students.

There was no immediate explanation—but 2,000 students demonstrated on Wednesday against the government Germany set up in the protectorate.

A meeting of the allied supreme war council was planned in London; French Premier Daladier left Paris to attend.

The British war office called for 20,000 men for home defense battalions; at the same time a recruiting campaign opened to increase from 20,000 to 40,000 the strength of the women's auxiliary territorial service whose members serve as clerks, cooks, chauffeurs, etc.

Operations in the undeclared war between Japan and China shifted to southeastern China, near China's avenue to French Indo-China and British Burma. Japanese reported their forces had driven 30 miles north from the coast since Wednesday.

3rd Term Answer Usually Ends With Same Remark From President Roosevelt

Hyde Park, Nov. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt laughed long and loudly today when reporters told him there had been considerable speculation about what he meant when, in laying the cornerstone for the Jefferson memorial in Washington Wednesday, he said he hoped by January, 1941, to be able to return for the dedication of the memorial itself.

Slapping a hand on his knee at a press conference, the chief executive chuckled that he had made the remark deliberately, but he still did not amplify it.

There had been numerous attempts to analyze his statement about January, 1941, to see whether it would throw any light on the third term issue.

The President's present term expires on January 20, 1941. The memorial will be dedicated the same month, but Mr. Roosevelt did not indicate Wednesday whether he hoped to return for that ceremony before or after January 20, or as a government official or private citizen.

Other dates in a saga on the third term issue:
June 29, 1937—At the White House in reply to a reporter's question as to whether he would seek a third term, the President threw back his head, laughed and suggested the newsmen put on a dunce cap and stand in the corner.

July 9, 1937—Mrs. Roosevelt, appearing at a question and answer session of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Home club of Hyde Park, said she hoped her husband would not seek a third term.

October 13, 1938—From Elliott Roosevelt, son of the President—"I wouldn't know actually whether he plans to run again, but personally, I hope he doesn't. Being the son of the President is sometimes a handicap."

July 3, 1939—James Roosevelt, eldest son of the President—"Everything is up to father."

July 20, 1939—In reply to a reporter's question about a third term, the President threw back his head, laughed and suggested the newsmen put on a dunce cap and stand in the corner.

July 22, 1939—Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, said that as far as health alone was concerned, her son could stand a third term very well.

August 12, 1939—On the 12th anniversary of Calvin Coolidge's statement, "I do not choose to run," the President was asked about the third term. He threw back his head and laughed, and then asked if the reporter was suggesting that he spend his holidays in the Black Hills of South Dakota.

August 4, 1939—Postmaster General Farley in Berlin—"Only Mr. Roosevelt knows whether Mr. Roosevelt will run again, and he hasn't seen fit to tell."

November 10, 1939—Asked at his press conference if the announcement that friends of Vice President Garner were pressing the Texan's candidacy would make any change in his plans, the President threw back his head, laughed and said don't be so subtle.

He didn't get a chance to mention the dunce cap and the corner, for a reporter said it for him.

The strange thing about it all is that the room in which the President holds his press conferences is circular.

1. It has no corners.
2. No one has ever produced a dunce cap.

An Evening Thought

Reflect upon your present blessings, of which every man has many; not on your past misfortunes, of which all men have some.—Dickens.

Out of the Past

Happening of days gone by as chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times the files reveal.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

70th Teachers' Institute Opens: The tables are turned in Adams county this week and while public school pupils are reveling in a week's vacation, their teachers are returning to school at the seventeenth annual institute, sessions of which began at Xavier Hall at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Son Is Born: A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Spangler, York street. This child is their fourth son.

Large Audience Greets Players Friday Evening: Gettysburg High School players won another success in their theatrical career when they presented "Adam and Eva," a three-act farce comedy Friday evening at the Lincoln Way Theater.

The cast of characters follows: James King, Clifton Wierman; Cora, Marguerite Rogers; Clinton De Witt, Alfred Gilbert; Julie De Witt, Louise Ramer; Eva King, Florence McClellan; Aunt Abby Becker, Mildred Deardorff; Dr. Jack Delamater, John Mickle; Horace Pilgrim, Walter Stultz; Adams Smith, Frederick Biesacker; Lord Andrew Gordon, Ellmore Slaybaugh.

The High School orchestra, under the direction of Miss Lucille Henry, furnished music before the performance and between the acts.

Couple Is Wedded: G. Walter Fream and Miss Louella Grace Riffe, both of Harney, Md., were married Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Mt. Joy Lutheran parsonage by the Rev. L. K. Young, pastor of the Mt. Joy Lutheran church. The couple will make their home in Harney.

Locates In Bendersville: Dr. Byron C. Jones, for the past eleven years a practicing physician at Bethlehem, this state, has moved to Bendersville to begin his practice of medicine there. For the time being he will be located at the home of W. C. Weiner.

Couple Wedded in Local Church: A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Francis Xavier church on Wednesday morning at the 7:30 o'clock mass when Miss Mary I. Paxton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Paxton, Gettysburg, and Samuel J. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Thomas, Gettysburg R. 1, were married by the Rev. Father Mark E. Stock.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Cox, of Raleigh, North Carolina, and William H. Thomas.

Biggest Parade Ever Held Here Features Armistice Day Events: Paralleled in the history of patriotic demonstrations in Gettysburg was the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post's celebration of Armistice Day, Tuesday, marking the sixth anniversary of the signing of the armistice which brought the most gigantic war of all time to an end.

The Legion's celebration was six-fold and each facet was an Armistice Day celebration in itself. Beginning with the parade, the events of the afternoon and evening were the coronation of Miss Madolyn Culp, sixteen-year old High School student as "Queen of the Military Ball"; an address by former United States Senator Thomas P. Gore, a nationally known figure; dedication of the Legion's flagstaff in front of the Post's home, a gift of Allen B. Plank; an ex-service men's banquet at the Eagle Hotel, and a Military Ball at Natural Springs Park at which the "Queen" and her court were guests of honor.

After the singing of "America" and prayer led by Rev. W. C. Robinson, William G. Weaver, commander of the local Legion post, called for two minutes silent prayer from the speaker's stand in Center Square.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson, president of Gettysburg College, was introduced and after introductory remarks, crowned Miss Culp as "Queen." The young lady was given an ovation when she rose to have the crown of white flowers placed upon her head.

Seven men on a brief vacation. Talking sickness and the weather. Business and its ruination.

Fellow of the band starts crooning. Widows gaze at him in rapture. Near a couple honey-mooning. Both delighted with their capture.

Some behind newspapers hidden—Fixtures found in every lobby—Golfers riding, being ridden. By their all-consuming hobby.

Strangers ever going, coming. Now and then a peal of laughter. Click of nervous fingers strumming.

Steel Company to Sell Monessen Plant

Monessen, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—The Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation has informed city council its huge national works here never will be used again to manufacture Linplate and is for sale.

Mayor James Gold said the announcement was made by the corporation in appealing for a reduction from $1,175,000 to $750,000 in the assessment of the plant, which has been idle nearly two years.

A company spokesman said that if the plant was used again it would provide only temporary employment to 200 or 300 persons compared with the 1,000 once working there.

The corporation reported it had rejected a $150,000 bid for the site from an undisclosed bidder and had fixed a price of $250,000 for the property with plans to sell "to any prospect at that price whether competitor or not," said Mayor Gold.

A Pittsburgh spokesman for the company reported the mill was worth about $200,000 as scrap and said an appraisal valuation for sale has not been made and therefore no actual sale price set.

ALL WAS WELL—UNTIL THE BILL CAME

Mitchell, S. D. (AP)—High School Coach Joe Quintal ate expensive pheasant before the hunting season opened, but he was not in trouble with the law.

He heard a school window crash. In the hall, a crippled bird was skidding from wall to wall. Fleet-footed Quintal caught it, and turned it over to the game warden who killed it and returned the bird to Quintal.

The school board billed the coach six dollars for a broken window, figuring it was his bird that did the damage.

YOUR PRIVILEGE TO SHARE

WE can be quietly assured that universal Utopias will forever exist only in dreams and in books. But each of us may have the happy privilege of creating a personal Utopia and sharing it with others.

Few of us enjoy supreme joy alone. We are happiest when we can share a sight of beauty, or a human thrill with some one else. A favorite line of mine is this: "He climbs highest, who helps another up."

The late Col. Nelson, founder of the Kansas City Star, was known as a rather uncompromising character. He once stated that "he couldn't sleep well—without his enemies." But I knew him well, and loved him. He had a gentleness and considerate nature. On one of his long automobile trips through the West he was daily inspired by the beauties of that marvelous country. And every day, as he sighted some point of interest—a mountain, a sunset, or some other phase of natural grandeur, he would not comment upon it until he had called his colored driver to him, stating that he wanted him to appreciate beauty as he did.

Most of the joy resulting from a kind deed, or from some gift to a friend, is that which the giver gets.

By right of inheritance every human being should have his share of human happiness. And that share should be all that he deserves. Some of us are more fortunate than others so that it is up to us to share what we have. Material wealth doesn't enter into sharing as a requisite. Some of us have only our heart, our cheer, our spirit, to share.

Chapter 36
THE INQUEST
IF THE tension at Tuck's garden party had been unbearable, that at the inquest was beyond words. The announcement that there would be an inquest on the body of Alis Lissey had thrown the campus into turmoil, or, rather, those of the group who did not already expect it.

The day was very hot. The inquest had been called in the coroner's office, a stuffy little room in the court house. The windows were dusty and streaked, and the varnish on the heavy plain chairs and tables was sticky in the heat. But no one seemed to notice. They filed in silently, and sat down without murmuring about the weather or the discomfort.

Alis Lissey, Spinster, was dead. She had died of the effects of poisoning on Sunday, at the age of fifty-two. Only Mrs. Deane showed any interest as that fact was read out.

The coroner was an apple-cheeked little man with a figure like a robin, and a high chirping voice quite out of keeping with death, and death by violence in particular. He put his questions cheerfully, with no apparent realization of the dreadful meaning that might lie behind the answers. Yet he let no simple point escape him, and once or twice let his gaze wander as if by accident to the District Attorney and the Police Commissioner, sitting quietly at the back of the room.

Tuck was the first witness called. "Mrs. Forrester, the deceased was your guest on the afternoon of the day she died?"

"She was."

"At what time did she arrive at your house?"

"About quarter after four, I think."

"Just what do you mean? Ten minutes after four or twenty-five minutes after?"

"Almost exactly quarter after. I—I had been watching the time."

"Why had you been watching the time, Mrs. Forrester?"

"I—I—"

"The exact reason please."

"The conversation wasn't going very well," Tuck said bravely. "I was hoping for a diversion, when I saw Miss Lissey coming."

"That does not place the time."

"The Devoes had come exactly at four o'clock," Tuck explained. "They had been there about fifteen minutes. I remember looking at my watch at twelve minutes after, and in just a minute Miss Lissey came."

"So it was with the Devoes that the conversation lagged?"

"Yes."

"I don't know."

"Just what was this conversation that lagged, Mrs. Forrester? Can you repeat it?"

"Why—it wasn't really a conversation at all. Mr. Devoe, I think, was talking to Miss Temple. I said something to Mrs. Devoe about the sundial and he broke in. His mother didn't seem to hear me, and he explained to her."

"Had you noticed that Mrs. Devoe was deaf before that time?"

"Preoccupied."

"No. I didn't think she was deaf then. It was just—that she was preoccupied."

"There was more to the conversation?"

"No. Miss Lissey came just then. Seating the Devoes and greeting them and Mrs. Murchison had taken the rest of the time."

"Then Mrs. Devoe was preoccupied when she first came to the party?"

"She seemed to be."

"Did you note signs of preoccupation in any other of your guests?"

"No."

"Did this preoccupation of Mrs. Devoe continue all through the afternoon?"

"Perhaps I shouldn't have called it preoccupation, Dr. Mayhew," Tuck said honestly. "Mrs. Devoe is always very quiet and self-contained."

at all out of the ordinary on Sunday afternoon," she said, fumbling with her belt and pulling at the side of her strange hat. "That is, nothing that might explain at all the terrible thing that happened there—if it really did happen, which I simply can't credit for only ourselves were there, and I'm sure—"

"I gather that you did observe something a little out of the ordinary, Mrs. Deane?" Dr. Mayhew broke in rather severely.

"Well, it wasn't particularly important, and I really don't like to speak of it. Poor Miss Lissey is dead, and I'm sure it seems almost sacrilegious."

"What is it, Mrs. Deane, may I ask?"

"Must I answer, then? Somehow it seems hardly delicate. It was just something that indicated to me that poor Miss Lissey was hardly herself that afternoon. She was so particular about her clothes, you know, so particular, and had such good taste. I used to marvel at the beautiful costumes she had—but of course she had the leisure to think about those things—well, I must go on—it was just that she wore a beautiful mauve flowered chiffon dress on Sunday with a horsehair hat to match, and I happened to notice—you will pardon the intimacy, of course—I happened to notice that she wore a white slip underneath it. Now she has a simply lovely mauve slip that was made with that dress. I've seen it several times, and I'm quite sure she couldn't have been thinking at all when she dressed or she would never have appeared in the white one. Why, the mauve one made simply all the difference in the world."

DEWEY TO TALK ON U. S. ISSUES

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Thomas E. Dewey's decision to break his long silence on national issues next month pumped new interest to day into the 1940 republican presidential race in which Governor Arthur H. James, of Pennsylvania, has become a more important figure.

Sharing attention on the democratic side was Thursday night's Baltimore speech by Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.), in which he praised President Roosevelt's record, called for a united party to assure victory next year, and explained that his own conflicts with the chief executive had been over methods rather than fundamental beliefs.

Some party leaders who have been watching the republican contest from the sidelines said that Dewey's chances of winning a place on the national ticket hinged largely on the stand he takes on major questions of the day.

Conceding that he has won a name for himself as New York's district attorney, they have been asking:

"Where does he stand on national issues?"

The announcement that Dewey would make the first of a series of midwest speeches at Minneapolis about December 6 coincided with the start of cross-country speaking tours by two others mentioned for the republican nomination.

Senators Taft, of Ohio, and Bridges, of New Hampshire, are on the stump, simultaneously with the launching of a boom for Pennsylvania's Governor James. His name was put forward Thursday by two big Pennsylvania republicans—former Senator Joseph R. Grundy and National Committeeman G. Mason Owlett.

Unlike past contests, a majority of the republican "possibilities" for 1940 are first-termers in their respective fields. Besides those already listed, Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, is another potential candidate who is serving his first term.

Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and McNary, of Oregon, are in their second and fourth terms, respectively, but they are the exceptions.

Byrd Ship to Take On Two Airplanes

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—Lugging the ponderous snowmobile Penguin 14th at its decks, Admiral Richard E. Byrd's flagship North Star neared Philadelphia today to take on airplanes and weather instruments for government-sponsored Antarctic exploration.

Admiral Byrd may join the ship here. She was expected to dock today after a two-day trip from Boston.

Waiting on a wharf for storage aboard the North Star were two bi-motored Curtiss condor planes with their fuel capacities increased and their engines ready for sub-zero flying. They are equipped with skis.

Five fliers from the Navy and Marine Corps, none with previous Polar experience, have been signed as volunteers to man the planes. If Admiral Byrd does not come aboard the North Star here, he says he will join the expedition in Panama.

Another expedition ship, the Bear, is due to sail from Boston in a few days.

AL CAPONE GETS TREATMENT FOR BRAIN DISEASE

Baltimore, Nov. 17 (AP)—Broken, flabby and ailing, "Scarface" Al Capone stared vacantly at the ceiling of a $30-per-day hospital suite today, free of prison cells in which he lived for seven years but not a lingering brain disease.

Outside the one-time Chicago gang czar's room sat a male orderly and a nurse. In or near the hospital were three federal agents, assigned by Attorney General Murphy to keep the fallen vice emperor under surveillance because, Murphy said, "certain things have come to our attention."

Whether the agents were to guard Capone from himself or from possible gangland reprisal was not made clear. No uniformed police were assigned to Union Memorial hospital and officials asserted none would be unless requested by the institution.

The gangster chief came here secretly Thursday from the federal prison at Lewisburg, Pa., and entered the general hospital as the patient of Dr. Joseph E. Moore, former director of the syphilis division of the Johns Hopkins medical clinic.

He was suffering from paresis — softening of the brain — but it was learned that, while his condition was serious, he was in no immediate danger.

Doctor Moore and hospital officials declined to discuss the case. Attorney General Murphy said Capone would be under treatment possibly three weeks and planned to go to Miami after his discharge. Murphy added that relatives had assured him the racketeer, who served his time for income tax evasion, would "go straight."

Hospital attendants who saw Capone said he looked "pale and weak." His wife, mother and brother, Ralph, were with him when he arrived and arrangements were made for the letter to occupy the second bedroom of the expensive suite.

No one about the hospital seemed certain who sent him the huge bunch of chrysanthemums, but they made a gleaming backdrop while Capone idly played cards with his brother until ordered to sleep Thursday night.

Meanwhile, Chicago police intensified their investigation of a possible link between Capone's old organization and last week's shotgun slaying of Edward J. O'Hare, president of the Sportsman's Park race track. Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of the state's attorney's investigators, asserted "there is no longer any doubt about it being a Capone job." He said he had learned Capone gangsters were involved in a dispute at Sportsman's Park about 10 days before O'Hare's assassination.

Capone left Sunday night from Terminal Island prison, San Diego, California, where he had been transferred from Alcatraz because of his physical condition. With his guards, he left the train at Harrisburg, Pa., and motored to Lewisburg where he was formally released.

Given the customary suit of clothes — but not the customary $10 — he left immediately with relatives and motored direct to Baltimore.

NAMED SUPERINTENDENT AT TORRANCE HOSPITAL

Greensburg, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—Dr. Ira C. Darling, superintendent of the Springfield state hospital at Skysville, Maryland, has been selected to head the Torrance state hospital, Board Chairman James Gregg announced.

Effective January 15, Doctor Darling will replace Dr. John Wiseman, acting superintendent who was not a candidate for the job. Doctor Wiseman succeeded Dr. Theodore Wollak, who quit after inauguration of the state republican administration.

Doctor Darling served for 18 years at Warren state hospital before going to the Maryland institution, and it was reported he would be able to return to the state with automatic re-instatement in the retirement setup.

NO ONE INJURED

No one was injured when a coupe driven by William E. Alexander, 26, Philadelphia, and a truck operated by Floyd I. Walker, 49, York, sideswiped on the Lincoln highway, about three miles west of New Oxford, Thursday morning. Private G. R. Wagonseller, of the Gettysburg detail of the Pennsylvania motor police, investigated.

NAZIS INDICATE READINESS TO LIST WAR AIMS

Berlin, Nov. 17 (AP)—Authorized sources said today any general mediation offer by President Roosevelt at this time would be "uninteresting" so far as Germany is concerned.

France's injection of Austrian restitution into the issues at stake in the European conflict, these sources declared, shows conclusively the all as regard all peace talks as futile.

However, should President Roosevelt ask both sides to disclose war aims to him with a view to finding some common basis for mediation, Germany would be most likely to respond, these sources intimated.

(The President has indicated no intention of taking either step—offering "general mediation" or asking the belligerents to outline their war aims to him.)

France, in her reply last Sunday to a Belgian-Netherlands offer of mediation, demanded as a precondition that Germany repair "injustices which force has imposed on Austria, Czechoslovakia and Poland." Great Britain put it up to Germany to assure an end of "aggression."

An inspired announcement of Thursday that Germany "just liberate Europe from the unbearable yoke of British rule of might" was seen as foreshadowing offensive rather than defensive war. It was the most specific statement of German war aims in several weeks.

The statement recalled a remark by a high-ranking Nazi to the press just before Germany started her invasion of Poland September 1: "If England meddles in our affairs with Poland, the price will be destruction of the British empire."

The declaration against the "British rule of might" was the German response to the British-French refusal to accept the Belgian-Netherlands mediation offer except on conditions cited in the replies, authorized sources said.

German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop answered the invitation to Germany with a polite but firm "no," and the Netherlands minister to Germany has been called home to report on the response.

A Prague radio broadcast Thursday night announced members of the so-called Czech legion—patriots who fought in Poland—would be shot whether taken as prisoners of war in the Polish cleanup or caught after returning home.

Gen. Lev Pichala, former Czech army officer and commander of the legion, escaped to France with a number of his men.

An unconfirmed report says the Czech legion numbered more than 30,000 men.

URGE WESTERNER FOR HIGH COURT

Washington, Nov. 17 (AP)—Western senators were divided today over need for appointment of a Supreme court justice from beyond the Mississippi river to succeed Justice Pierce Butler, who died Thursday.

Several of them said they would urge President Roosevelt to name a westerner, but Senator Borah (R-Idaho) questioned the importance of geography in the selection.

The name of Attorney Frank Murphy figured prominently, in capital speculation. Although a resident of Michigan rather than of the west, Murphy is a Catholic, as was Butler.

The 73-year-old justice, in fact, was the only member of that faith on the court.

It was generally expected that Mr. Roosevelt would not name Justice Butler's successor until after congress convenes in January.

The fifth vacancy among the justices since Mr. Roosevelt took office emphasized anew the probability that his appointees will dominate the court for years to come.

The four men he has appointed have been comparatively young.

Senator Adams (D-Colo.) said he intended to renew his recommendation of Circuit Judge Sam G. Branton, of New Mexico.

Senator King, (D-Utah) announced that he again would urge the appointment of Judge Harold M. Stephens, of Utah, a member of the United States court of appeals here. Stephens is a Catholic.

Another westerner to receive unofficial mention was Senator Schwellenbach (D-Wash.), an active Roosevelt supporter.

Among Catholics whose names have been suggested in various quarters are John T. Devaney, former chief justice of the Minnesota Supreme court, and Charles Fahy, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board.

SIMPLE CASE OF PROVOCATION

Albany, N. Y., (AP)—A husband who will not leave a saloon when his wife calls from outside is equally responsible with her if she tosses a brick through the window, according to Police Justice Edward S. Kampf.

Kampf made his ruling when the woman in the case pleaded guilty to breach of the peace after the brick slightly injured the leg of another woman inside the grill. He suspended the sentence on her, reprimanded the errant husband and ordered him to settle for the damage.

USE OF ADVERSITY

Durham, N. C., (AP)—Warehousesmen claim 33-year-old Wilson Dunn is the fastest tobacco packer in these parts. But what amazes his admirers in the auction warehouses is that Dunn beats the others single-handed. He lost his left hand in a corn-shredder 11 years ago.

Auto Skid Fatal To York County Boy

An 18-year-old York county hunter was fatally injured when the automobile in which he was riding with two companions skidded on some loose stones and upset Thursday night at Franklin Church, about five miles from Dillsburg.

The youth, Ray Decker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Decker, York R. 1, died of a fractured skull and broken neck. Dr. L. U. Zeeh, York county coroner, said.

Accompanying the victim were Carl Seitz, 16, Shiloh, and Lester Coulson, 16, Wellsville, who said the accident occurred as they were returning from a hunting trip. Their coupe was driven by Decker and was demolished.

The two companions, suffering only minor injuries, carried the victim to a nearby farmhouse of a Mr. Baum from where Decker was taken to the office of Dr. W. L. Crawford, Dillsburg. Seitz and Coulson received treatment from the physician for cuts of the body.

NEW "ICE AGE" FACTS REVEAL MAN'S PROGRESS

Philadelphia, Nov. 17 (AP)—A new calendar of the great ice ages which goes back one million years and changes the picture of man's beginnings was described to the American Philosophical society today.

The calendar divides the past million years into seven great days shows that man was already widespread on the third day, nearly half a million years ago—a time when scientists have thought him just beginning.

The calendar is made of the gravel deposits of the four ice ages and the three warm periods between them that have marked the earth in the last million years. Human relics appear in the gravels on the third of these days, the time when the second great ice age covered many parts of the world with ice hundreds of feet deep.

These discoveries were reported by Dr. Helmut De Terra, of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences and the American Museum of Natural History, New York. They were made in the last two years with aid of the Peabody museum of Harvard, the American Philosophical society, the Carnegie institution of Washington and Harvard university.

Doctor De Terra said they enable scientists to visualize the life pattern of Asia's earliest known inhabitants. This pattern, he added, is an unbroken story of improvement.

A less belligerent and probably more humane world may be expected if the present trend toward depopulation continues.

This opinion, based on studies of great population changes of the past, was reported to the society by Josiah Cox Russell, assistant professor of history at the University of North Carolina.

He studied the very rapid population increase of the United States from the Revolution to the World war, the rapid rise of population in England from 1666 to the black death in 1348, and the long decline in European population from about 200 to 900 A. D.

"Rising population," he said, "tends to send persons into the cities and into adjacent territory, often into areas of marginal subsistence."

"Both medieval England and modern America saw an increasing centralization of government. Furthermore, better business made taxation easier, which in itself tended to stimulate centralization. The contrary seems true—that declining population in the long run forces a simplification of government.

"At first the ills produced by fall of population and consequent depression are apt to bring a very large amount of government interference as a remedy for its troubles."

He found that during periods of decreasing population people tended to lose the success and prosperity motifs, and to admire simpler virtues, of the type to which lessened business forced them to adopt.

Defender of Tree in Lancaster Expires

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 17 (AP)—They can cut down that tree now—For death, striking unexpectedly Thursday night, claimed Mrs. Jennie May, 83, lone defender of the old maple in front of her home in down-town Lancaster.

It was just last February that Mrs. May, watching for the first sign of spring buds, promised that the old tree—last one in the business district—will stand as long as I live.

There are still some leaves from those buds hanging on the tree. A few fluttered silently to the pavement Thursday night as two friends entered the tiny 200-year-old house and found Mrs. May dead.

A gas jet on the kitchen stove was open and nearby was the body. Dr. H. K. Hogg, deputy coroner said Mrs. May might have failed to close the jet fully while using the stove or bumped against it accidentally.

Gen. U. S. Grant's tomb in New York was built by popular subscription at a cost of $600,000.

Attorney Named to Conduct Inquiry

Harrisburg, Nov. 17 (AP) — Attorney General Claude T. Reno today appointed former Judge Roy P. Hicks, of Schuylkill county, as a special deputy attorney general, to conduct a grand jury investigation into "racket protection" charges against the office of District Attorney James C. Bane in Washington county.

Reno notified Judge Howard W. Hughes, of Washington county, that he was superseding the Washington county district attorney in the investigation.

General Motors Units Convicted In 'Trust' Case
South Bend, Ind., Nov. 17 (AP)—Government lawyers today hailed the anti-trust conviction of General Motors corporation, world's largest automobile manufacturer, as a victory in the broad federal anti-monopoly drive and a blow at factory control of car financing.

A federal jury of Hoosier farmers and little business men Thursday night convicted the corporation and three affiliates of violating the Sherman act by forcing dealers to give instalment sales paper to the General Motors Acceptance corporation.

But it acquitted 17 officials of the concerns, including President William S. Knudsen and Board Chairman Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., of General Motors, General Manager M. E. Coyle, of Chevrolet, a G. M. vice president, and President John J. Schumann, Jr., of G. M. A. C.

The affiliates were G. M. A. C., G. M. A. C. of Indiana and the General Motors Sales corporation.

Others of motordom's "big three"—Ford and Chrysler—were pledged to steer clear of the same kind of coercion of which G. M. C. was convicted. They were indicted, too, here in May, 1938, but later in consent decrees agreed to make the General Motors case a test.

The jury had deliberated 25 hours and 40 minutes on evidence given by more than 200 witnesses in a five and a half weeks' trial.

The law permits fines up to $5,000 each on the corporations.

WHY DOLLARS

LEAVE HOME

Unnecessary "big city buying" does harm to local merchants; it weakens our community. Let us make ourselves familiar with the quality and prices of the goods obtainable on home shelves before we permit our home-earned dollars to leave home.
